

Currently there are hundreds of thousands of American Pit Bull Terriers and other related breeds being killed on a daily basis.

WHY?

No one can offer any real explanation as to why millions of dogs are being taken from their owners in places like Denver and put down. Other than to say they are "dangerous."

The problem is not the dog, or the breed, the problem is the owner and their lack responsibility. The problem is the local governments enforcement of current laws and the problem is made worse by enacting legislation that has proven to be ineffective time and time again.

If Breed Specific Legislation works, why do dog bites continue to make the news?

If Breed Specific Legislation works, why do innocent dog owners have to move and uproot their lives for the actions of others?

If Breed Specific Legislation works, why haven't we seen the number of bites decreased.

The Answer is clear Breed Specific Legislation *Does Not Work
